Dear Journey's School Parents:

I am pleased to announce the arrival of Mary Ellen Agnew-Place to Journey's School. Mary Ellen will be teaching all music and drama classes at the school and helping Journey's School develop our Performing Arts program. Mary Ellen has spent over thirty years in the classroom teaching both music and drama. She has a degree from Smith College in drama and music.

Over the course of her career, she has worked the majority of her time in independent schools – serving for over ten years as a department head for a large Performing Arts department. Mary Ellen is an accomplished pianist and harpist, has put on many productions, created and coached a student singing group, and served in all aspects of independent school life.

We are excited to have Mary Ellen both teach and develop our Performing Arts program. Please feel free to contact me with any questions.

Sincerely,

Nate McClennen
Head of School
